Since the recession of late last decade, there have been major developments with regard to securities laws and securities litigation. The Supreme Court and other federal court rulings have been grappling with these new laws and regulations, and their rulings will have a substantial effect on the operations of corporations, financial institutions and securities professionals. In this seminar, a panel of experienced securities litigators and experts will closely examine recent decisions involving allegations of market manipulation, insider trading, and misrepresentation of information.

RSVP: This event will be free for everyone able to attend live. The webcast will also offer 1.5 CLE credits. The pricing for the webcast is $100 for members and $130 for non-members. Please RSVP to Erin Rodgers, erodgers@fedbar.org, by April 21st and note if you will be registering for the webcast.
